

Looking forward

Niko can be uncomfortable with having his head touched. It's important that our dogs are comfortable with this so that we are able to perform physical health checks. I've been using the 'bucket game' to help Niko become more comfortable with me checking his ears and eyes. The bucket game allows Niko to communicate with me; when he looks away from the bucket, this is my cue to stop and give him a break.

Over the next few months, I will continue building on the skills that Niko has started learning. Niko is a pleasure to work with and I am excited to update you in your February Pupdate.
